

Kadlec Donates Surplus Computers to Delta High School

Kadlec Regional Medical Center is donating 70 surplus computers and other equipment to Delta High School, the new school focused on science and technology in the Tri-Cities. The equipment will be collected by Delta staff and students at 3:30 PM, Tuesday (today), June 1.

“Every few years, Kadlec is in a position to donate computers that are no longer useful for our purposes, but still have applications for others,” said Robert Taylor, Kadlec director of information systems. “Schools such as Delta are a natural, and we’re thrilled that they will be able to use them.”

In addition to the computers, the school will receive monitors, keyboards, and other technology tools.

“We’re grateful to Kadlec for the donation”, said Jim Hendricks, Engineering and Technology teacher at Delta High School. “As our school continues to grow, these computers will help us meet the technology needs of our students.”
